About a year ago the town appropriated money for the repairing of the Grogan grounds. The repairs included grading the grounds, changing the position of the baseball diamond, and removing shrubbery from the field. The town has done a splendid thing by the school, because this is the only field we have to use for our athletics. In behalf of the school and the Athletic Association we wish to thank the townspeople for what they have done.

The staff of the Journal solicits your support. There may be people in school who take an interest in writing poems, news, and stories of personal experiences. Why not help by contributing your "opus litteratum" to our magazine? If this work is done outside of class your English teachers may give you credit. Talk it over with them. In this manner you will be able to help yourself as well as the school paper. And who does not like to see his name in print?

We were glad to see the Freshmen putting citizenship into practice by their quick response to our principal's clean-up call. But we wonder where the upper class men were.

The staff of the Journal express their heartiest wishes to the teachers and students for an enjoyable Thanksgiving.

LITERARY

THE OLYMPIC GAMES

The Olympic games that were held in Amsterdam this summer created intense interest throughout the world. Centuries ago when the Greeks were a great people in the Old World, we heard of their gathering on great occasions or festivals. These great festivals were not for the sole purpose of feasting; they were occasions on which the men of Greece showed their skill and stamina in various games. This custom has been carried down through the ages until today we have our Olympic sports, held every four years in various countries with participants from the far corners of the earth attending.

This great get-together, as we might call it, helps to create a certain amount of good will between the countries that take part. Not only does it create good will, but it brings out that quality in an athlete which the people of today like to see, namely—sportsmanship.

What part has our country taken in these Olympics? We have taken a leading part, doing our share and more in bringing a good spirit, the spirit of sportsmanship, to the games. Although this year we figured less prominently in the track events, winning only one first place, we won the games.

The effects are far reaching. The men and women that take part are usually people who go through life exercising their sportsmanship, honesty, and good will. In school and out of school these qualities are everywhere respected.

TO THE FRESHMEN

Here's our regards to the Freshmen,
With best wishes and hopes sincere,
Though you get the blame may you come out the same,
Sophomores, like us, this year.

We hope you enjoy the teachers,
And may your card be one to frame,
But, however you act, be ware of this fact,
You will always get the blame.

MY TRIP

You can imagine my joy when I was told that I might go to Europe, to countries where people were different, where customs were different, and where the languages were different. I could hardly wait for June 7 to come when I could be on the "Belgenland" on my way over there. It finally came. In due time, the liner slowly poked its nose out of New York, with all aboard laughing, joking, and planning the days to come.

About three o'clock that afternoon the ship began to rock, therefore, some of the people began to get sick. It was funny to see some of the passengers sprawled in their deck chairs, with a book on their faces as though they were going to die, for their faces were wax colored, and their lips were purple. As we proceeded farther out to sea, it became rougher, consequently, the sick steadily increased in numbers. These people didn't appear to be so funny, for I was beginning to have an odd feeling in my stomach. I had become victim of this joy-killing sickness. At supper time I went below and had—a cup of coffee, and I ran back aft where I fell into a deck chair to stay until bedtime. Thank goodness that I was not sick for the rest of the voyage.

On June 16, the "Belegenland" slowly nosed its way up the River Scheldt to the quaint old city of Antwerp. There, after much excitement over nothing at all, we finally had our baggage checked to Roncq, which was to be our home for the next four weeks. About two weeks after landing, we started for Paris, the place I was most desirous of seeing. Of course this meant that I would visit L'Opera, L'arc de Triomphe, L'Hotel des Invalides, and La Tour Eiffel.

I think I shall never forget the Eiffel Tower. I remember distinctly as I was sitting on the train, I saw its lofty dome towering far above the buildings of the city. After a jerky ride in a taxi, I found myself under a mass of skeleton steel network reaching far into the sky. My eagerness was so great, that I almost ran to the elevator, a curious two-story affair, into which I was locked. After a slow tedious ascent, I came to the first landing, a large, hollow square, which had a restaurant and a cafe. At the cafe I stopped long enough to write a few post cards and have some coffee, like a real Parisian. I again took the elevator for the second landing, very similar to the first one except that it was about one-half its size. Here it was necessary to change cars for the dome. The ascent was slower than ever. Seeing the earth draw away had a sickening affect on me which reminded me of the most uncomfortable first day on the ocean. When the slow moving vehicle finally stopped, I found myself in a small glass enclosed platform, far above the rest of the city. The Seine River appeared like a silvery ribbon below, the noisy taxis were now silent, and the people seemed like pigmies. At last one of my wishes had been fulfilled, I had been on the highest structure in the world.

THE APPEARANCE OF THE TOWN OF N. ANDOVER

What great ability and judgment our forefathers demonstrated in making North Andover, Massachusetts their future home! They could see the natural beauties of the location in hand, and far-sightedness told them that such a site would develop into what comprises our town, today. They had the opportunity to settle among the marshy banks of the Merrimack River, but no, for many reasons, that place did not hold any lure for them. They preferred the hilly lands some distance from it; the place where healthful environs and pure, invigorating air dominated.

The town has slowly but surely built itself into one of the most beautiful and most pleasing residential spots in the world. It has many miles of streets and roads, and a great deal of these are covered with many trolley car lines. These streets are lined with gigantic shade trees, all blending into one picturesque scene. It has many school houses and town building, all in perfect condition and fit for this era of living. The schools are in the hands of competent teachers, and the town offices are run by efficient clerks and officials. Its parks and grounds, for the use of the public, are numerous, and are well kept by diligent laborers.

Due to the fine qualities of the towns' inhabitants, the local government finds it extremely easy to handle the people, and it has to pass very few laws for town maintainence. If vandalism takes hold of some people, the others quickly exterminate it. The residents are extremely scrupulous about the condition of their lawns, the trimming of vines, the pruning of trees, and in keeping their houses and other buildings artistically painted.

Despite all the care which practically all the persons take, children of school age have the audacity to mar what their predecessors have made beautiful. They throw all sorts of containers and waste matter on the streets, and then take pleasure in their childishness. Especially in school, does the mischievous part of the student body practice its pranks, thus lowering the schools prestige in the minds of visitors. However, the faculties of all the schools put an end to this, by careful management and strict methods of persuasion. On the whole we North Andoverians, can justly pride ourselves on the fact that we have a town that is beautifully built, efficiently managed, and well kept.

A CASE OF MISTAKEN INDENTITY

It was a beautiful summer day, just right for some fun in the woods, when my friend called for me and we decided to adjourn to the forest.

We were having a rollicking good time, climbing trees, playing monkey, and such, when for some reason or other we became quite tired and decided to rest awhile. As we were sitting down we spied, what seemed to be, a little black kitty which had apparently strayed from his mother. Feeling like doing a big brother act, I determined to catch the kitty and return him to his mother. I strolled casually over. when alack, alas, and other woebegone expressions, I found out, but too late, it was a very bad case of "mistaken indentivity."

AN ESCAPE

Years ago, my great, great, grandfather, who was a tub maker, lived on the outskirts of a village in Germany. Two miles from where he lived was another village, and to get there one had to go on foot or horseback through a dense forest. In this forest was a large pack of wolves.

One day when he had finished making a wooden tub he decided to deliver it in the other village. So he shouldered the tub and started off. When he had almost reached the other side of the forest he heard wolves howling close behind him. Seeing no other way of escape he got under the tub. The handles of the tub were made so that when he turned the tub upside down it stood a few inches from the ground. When the wolves came up, they tried to tip the tub over to get at him, but every time one would stick his paws under the tub, he would cut off its toes with his knife. By their howls they aroused the villagers, who came to the rescue with pitch forks and clubs. When the wolves had been driven off, my great, great, grandfather went on his way.

SCHOOL NEWS and NOTES

The class presidents for the school year 1928-1929 are Robert Graham, senior; Charles Stillwell, junior; Gilbert Smith, sophomore; George Busby, freshman.

Miss Helen Pearson, who had been with us in the English department for the past two years, has now taken a position in the high school in Arlington, Mass. Miss Elizabeth Cutler has taken her place in Johnson High. Miss Cutler is a graduate of Wellesley College, class of 1928. As sorry as we are to have Miss Pearson leave us, we are happy to welcome Miss Cutler into our faculty.

A short time ago a committee was chosen to represent the Junior Class in the choice of class rings. The members of the committee were Dorothy Clowes, Velma Coates, Leona Thompson, Arthur Covell, Malcolm Choate, Charles Stillwell, and Gusta Larson.

The ring chosen by the class known as the "Pioneer", a beautiful gold ring with detailed diework. The outstanding characteristics of the ring are the "Prairie Schooner" and the "Mayflower", which are situated on each shank. On the face is a bold eagle with wings spread, carrying a banner, and on this banner, set in enamel, is an old English "J".

Thursday evening, November 1, 1928, the Senior Class gave a reception to the Freshman Class. The Senior entertained with a play entitled, "The Templeton Teapot." The cast was as follows:

Mr. Horace Templeton	Samuel Osgood
Mrs. Templeton	Miss Marion Buchan
Sue Templeton	Miss Lucy Elliot
Professor Algernon Gates	Edmund Fogarty
Hilda Templeton	Miss Marian Glennie
Eric Dean	Douglas Neil
Fannie Burnett	Miss Blanche Greenwood
Mr. Leon Burnett	Gerald Curran

Following this entertainment games were played. Refreshments were then served, and dancing was enjoyed until eleven o'clock. Sutcliffe's orchestra supplied the music for dancing. All present found the party an enjoyable affair.

The upper classmen regret that James Z. Koper was obliged to leave school because of illness.

Dorothy Clowes has left us to return to Lawrence High School.

Mr. Hayes expects to start basketball practice about the first week in December. Material is necessary.

ATHLETICS

ATHLETICS

On September 7 Mr. Hayes issued the call for football material. About twenty-five candidates responded. Of this number only two were veterans, the others were inexperienced players. With the Danvers game only a few weeks off, Mr. Hayes whipped a team into shape to meet the much heavier team. Although our boys were greatly out-weighted they went into the Danvers team like wildcats, holding them to a 6-0 victory. The team consists of Albrecht, A. Galaher. Ed. Galaher, Bottomly, Donovan, Donlan, Kelly, Covell, Ratcliff, Phelan, A. Fletcher, Cote. Dehullu, Stork, Stillwell, Neville, and Tetler.

Ed. Galaher was elected captain of this year's squad.

The scores of the games played are:

Country Day	13	Johnson	0
Danvers	6	Johnson	0
Chelmsford	8	Johnson	0
Wilmington	12	Johnson	13
Billerica	3	Johnson	6
Manning	6	Johnson	0
Manchester	6	Johnson	13

Three more games are scheduled, namely with Reading, Methuen and Woodbury.

CLASS OF 1926

The first dramatization of a modern foreign language story ever to be done at Boston University has just been completed by a college of practical arts and letters student. Ruth Paisley of North Andover, the German department at the college has announced. "Der Schwiegersohn," by Baumbach, has been transcribed by Miss Paisley into a four-act drama, and will be used as the club's annual winter production.

Miss Paisley is secretary of the college German club, is the college organist, and has been a literary editor of Sivad, the college yearbook, for two years. She also plays in the college orchestra and is a member of the English club.

"Der Schwiegersohn" will be given after the Christmas recess by members of the German club at the college. Tryouts will begin next week.

We have learned with great pleasure of the success which has met Edmund Elliot and Malcolm Buchan, former luminaries at Johnson High School Athletics. Elliot has made the varsity substitute guard position, and Buchan has made the Frosh, at the halfback berth, being the team star in kicking, passing, and line plunging.

CLASS OF 1919

Mr. Harold T. Godfrey, and Miss Ruth M. Cates of Andover were married Saturday, September 22, 1928 at the South Church, Andover, Mass. The ceremony was performed by Dr. Victor A. Bigelow of Andover. Mr. Godfrey, a graduate of Lowell Technical Institute, class of 1927, is an erector for the Davis and Furber Machine Company of this town, and at present is at Athens, Georgia. Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey will make their home at the Caronel Apartments, Main Street, Andover, when they return home from the South.

JOKES

Miss Clara Chapman: "Now, Donlan. what are you doing, learning something?"

Tom: "No, ma'am. I was just listenin' to you."

Doug Neil: "You have a lovely color in your cheeks. You must have walked quite a distance to get that."

Leona Thompson: "Yes, our neighborhood drug store doesn't keep it."

Miss Amazeen: "It gives me great pleasure to mark you 85 on your examination."

Donovan: "Why not make it 100 and give yourself a real thrill."

Miss Haven (raging): "I'm losing my mind!"

Connors: "No wonder! Every time you see me you give me a piece of it."

Mother: "Did you go right to sleep last night, Arnold?"

Ratcliff: "I dunno Mummy. I didn't stay awake long enough to find out."

Margaret Bower: "Why are you so sad, Arthur?"

Hodgkins: "I got a proposal in an anonymous letter."

Miss Hatch: "The little boy who hides behind his mother's skirts today has a bright future ahead of him as a magician."
